

Asian American and Pacific Islander Heritage Month makes May beautiful!

During this month, we celebrate the Asian American and Pacific Islander communities and honor the countless ways their members make the world a more beautiful place!

An illustration of a young woman with long blonde hair, wearing a white and red snow suit and a black helmet with yellow goggles. She is snowboarding down a snowy slope, leaning forward with her arms outstretched. The snowboard is red with yellow stripes.

Chloe Kim

made history at age 17 as the first woman to land back-to-back 1080-degree jumps in Olympic competition.

An illustration of a woman with long black hair, wearing a green traditional dress with a purple flower in her hair. She is standing with her hands clasped in front of her.

Brianna Fruean

is an environmental activist. She advocates for climate change issues in her native Samoa and the wider Pacific region.

An illustration of a woman with black hair in a ponytail, wearing a black and gold patterned figure skating costume. She is performing a jump or spin, with one leg extended upwards. She is wearing white ice skates.

Kristi Yamaguchi

started figure skating to strengthen her legs and ultimately became the first Asian American to win a gold medal at the Winter Olympics.

An illustration of a man with short brown hair and glasses, wearing a blue jacket. He is holding a microphone in his right hand and gesturing with his left hand.

Kevin J. Patel

became a climate justice activist at a young age, motivated by his severe heart issues cause by Los Angeles's poor air quality.